INDEX

TO THE

SEVENTY-SIXTH VOLUME OF THE QUARTERLY REVIEW.

A.

Alison, Mr., objections to his writings and statements, 215 — the Duke of Wellington's operations on the 15th of June, 1815, 216—continuation of his military errors in the 2nd edition of his History, 230 — Thielman's position at Wavre, 232 — alleged correspondence of the Duke of Wellington with Fouché, 233 — accusation of being surprised, 238—position taken by the Duke, 240 —the Duchess of Richmond's ball on the 17th of June, 242.

America, the United States of, population, 22—effects of its domestic slavery, 23.

Army, moral discipline of the, 387 — absence of military show in London, 388—constitution of the armies of the Continent, 388, 391—of the British army, 390 — severity of the English soldier's duties, 392—his history traced, 393—general dislike to the army, 396—its morality, 398—officers, 399—improvements in its government during the last twelve years, 403—the canteen system, 404 — deficiency of religious principles in our soldiers, 405—church-accommodation, 406, 411—regimental chaplains and chaplains to the forces, 408—Divine worship for soldiers in parish churches, 414—separate service, ib. — barrack-service, 415 — spiritual care of the sick, 416—changes necessary in the system, 418.

Arrivabene, Le Comte de, Situation Economique de la Belgique, 11.

Australia, 488. See Strzelecki.

B.

Baptista, the Father Giovanni, 154.

Belgium, number of houses in, 14.

Betham, Sir William, 'Etruria Celtica,' 38—character of the book, 45—his theory of Etruscan origin, 46, 48—onslaughts upon his fellow-antiquaries, 45, 47.

Booth, Mr., murder of in the county of Cavan, June, 1845, 298.

Brougham, Henry, Lord, 'Lives of Men of Letters and Science who flourished in the Reign of George III.,' 62—contents of the present volume, ib.—Voltaire, 63 — the charge of blasphemy against him, 64—his early irreligion, 66—wealth, 68—the great ambition of his life, 69—position among infidels, 70—conduct in the cases of Calas and de la Barre, 72—meanness, 73—conduct in relation to the King of Prussia, ib.—nature of his attachment to Madame du Chatelet, 74—'La Pucelle,' 76 — 'Discours sur l'Homme,' 77—'Essai sur les Mœurs,' 78—his plays, 80—vanity, 81—Rousseau, 82—'La Nouvelle Héloïse,' ib. — the 'Confessions,' 83 — vanity, 84 — Lord Brougham's carelessness in the matter of authorities; death of Rousseau, 63, 85—Hume, 87—refutation of his Lordship's attack upon the 'Quarterly,' 89 —Robertson: view of his character and manners, 91—as a speaker and leader in the General Assembly, 92—style as an historian, 93—effect of his intimate acquaintance with the great scenes of history, 94—habits, 96.

C.

Calderon de la Barca, Madame, 'Life in Mexico,' 98—character of the book, 114—voyage to South America, 115—the Herraderos, 116—a bull-fight, 118.
Celibacy of the Catholic clergy, 299. See Michelet.
Census of 1841, 11—Labours of the commissioners, 12—classification of houses, 13—of persons, 14—competition from over population, 15—increase of population, 16—births and mortality in the manufacturing districts, 18—moral statistics of the agricultural and manufacturing populations, 19—foundling hospitals, 21—population of the United States, 22—of Ireland, 26—Irish and American education, 27—influence of marriage, 37.
Chesterfield, Philip Dormer, Earl of, 459. See Mahon.
Child of the Islands, 1. See Norton.
Clergy, relation of the, to the people, 299. See Michelet.
Criminal offenders; tables showing the number of, committed in 1840, 11—effect of the recent changes in the criminal law, 29.
Croker, Rt. Hon. J. W., motion in 1821 for a provision for the Roman Catholic clergy, 278—extract from his 'Life of Boswell,' 477.

D.

Damer, Mrs. Dawson, 'Diary of a Tour in Greece, Turkey, Egypt, and the Holy Land,' 98—character of the work, 125—sketch of Mehemet Ali, 126—the reversion of his beard, 127.
Dress, Lord Chesterfield's essay on, 464.
Drummond, Henry, 'A Letter on the Payment of the Irish Roman Catholic Church,' 247—character and contents of the letter, 287.

E.

Egerton, Lady F., 'Journal of a Tour in the Holy Land,' 98—nature and contents of the work, 122.
Etruria, 38—ancient names of the Etruscans, 39—Dempster's researches, 40—theory of their Transalpine origin, 42—the classical theory, ib.—theory of Micali, 43—Niebuhr and Müller's views, 44—their claim to be considered a Lydian colony, 53—Lydo-Asiatic religion, 58—sepulchral monuments of the two races, ib. See also Betham and Gray.

F.

Ford, Richard, a Hand-book for Travellers in Spain, 137—his qualifications as an author, 140—difficulties of travel in Spain, 142—Spanish booksellers, 139—servants, 142—mendicants, 145—art, 146—purchase of pictures, 148—monumental sculpture, 149—pilgrimages, 150—houses and domestic habits, 152—dress, 155—wines, 156—cigars, 157—the convent of St. Yuste, 159—the existing fever for railways in Spain, 162.

G.

Gleig, Rev. G. R., a Sketch of the Military History of Great Britain, 387.
Gray, Mrs. Hamilton, 'The History of Etruria,' 38—her theory of Etruscan origin, 50.
Grosvenor, Countess, 'Narrative of a Yacht Voyage,' 98—interest attached to the work, 123—effect of her long habit of sea life, 124.

H.

Hahn-Hahn, Countess Ida, Orientalische Briefe, 98—the Countess as a writer of novels and of travels, 130—plague-dogs in Constantinople, 132—the Pyramids, 133—rebuilding of the convent on Mount Carmel, 134.
Handbooks, Murray's, 137—qualifications required in their authors, 138.
Herodotus, his correctness in matters of fact, 53.
Heuschling and Vandermaelin, 'Statistique Générale de la Belgique,' 11.
Horsley, Very Reverend Heneage, a Letter from, to Sir C. E. Smith, Bart., on the subject of the Maynooth Grant, 247—his description of the internal state of the college, 269.
Houston, Mrs., 'Journal of a Yacht Voyage to the Texas,' 98.
Humboldt, Baron, 496.
Hume, David, 87. See Brougham.

I.

Ireland, 247—present state of the case in respect to the Maynooth grant, 248—necessity of conciliation, 249—state of Protestant feeling, 250—safest standard round which the country can rally, 254—real insignificance of Maynooth, 255—character of the opposition to the grant, 256—the endowment of idolatry argument, 258—recognition of the Romish Church since 1791, 259—its position in Canada, Malta, &c., 260—obligations towards Maynooth enjoined by the Act of Union, 264—its first endowment, 266—refutation of the arguments against the grant, 268—necessity of its increase, 269—defects of the system pursued at the college, 270—the Academical Institutions Bill, 271—the 'Godless education' accusation, 272—effect of the admission of Roman Catholics to Trinity College, Dublin, 274—objections of the Romish bishops, 275—State provision for the clergy, 276—the propositions of 1792 and 1799, 277—of 1803 and of 1821, 278—the Veto question in 1808—motions in 1825, 279—answer to the arguments against the provision, 280—defects of the present system of Irish church support, 282—cause of the disloyalty of the priests, 285—preponderance in favour of the State provision, 286—present position of Ireland, 289—measures that should be adopted, ib.—amount of the grant required, 290, 290—revenues of the priesthood in France, 292—would the Irish priesthood accept the provision? 293—advantages of the arrangement, 294—example to be derived from Austria's conduct in respect to the Protestant church, 297—mainspring of O'Connell's power, 296.

Ireland, antiquities of, 354. See Petrie.

J.

Jackson, Robert, 'A View of the Formation, Discipline, and Economy of Armies,' 387.

Johnson, Dr., 476. See Mahon.

K.

Kerry, the Knight of, Narrative of the Duke of Wellington's Proceedings on the 15th, 16th, and 17th June, 1815, 222—A Letter to Sir R. Peel on the Endowment of the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland, 247—extract, 252.

L.

Lady travellers, 98—female qualifications for authorship, 99—comparison between English and foreign female writers of travels, 102—cause of the want of French authoresses, 104—division of modern French tourists, ib.—lady travellers of rank, 119—good feeling and right principle in their works, 122—difference in the home and foreign standard of female propriety, 136. See also Meredith, Poole, Calderon, Romer, Londonderry, and Hahn-Hahn.

Lafitte, M., 528.

Letters from Madras, 98—their value, 111—an Indian house described, 112—life in a rural district, 113—a missionary's visit, 114.

Londonderry, the Marchioness of, Visit to the Courts of Vienna, Constantinople, &c., 98—Similarity in the tastes and style of the Marquis and Marchioness of Londonderry, 127—objects of the tour, 128—presentation to the Ottoman court, 129—to the Bey of Tangiers, 130.

M.

Mahon, Lord, The Letters of Philip Dormer Stanhope, Earl of Chesterfield, 459—eminence of the family, ib.—Letters on the Education of his Son, 460-482—immorality of many of the precepts in them, 484—sale at his death, 487—his other unpublished letters, 461—personal character: Dr. Matey's Biography, 464—the Lady Suffolk story, 465—cause of his absence from court for fourteen years, 467—ridicule of royal German predilections, 468—appointed Irish viceroy, 471—secretary of state, 472—embassy to Holland—his government of Ireland, 473—cause of his retirement from office, 475—interview with Johnson relative to the English Dictionary, 476—real reason for his not cultivating the latter's acquaintance, 478—Johnson's letter, 479—authorship of the 'Apology,' 480—conduct to Madame de Bouchet, 483—religious opinions, 485—death of his son, 487—the Countess of Chesterfield, ib.—the Earl's portraits, 488.

Marmont, Le Maréchal, Duc de Raguse, Esprit des Institutions Militaires, 204—his opinion of ancient and modern military writers, ib.—contents of the work, 205—tactics, 206—marches and counter-marches—the English and French on the banks of the Guarena, July, 1812; the Marshal's mis-statements, 208—equipment of cavalry: fortifications, 210—reconnaissances, 212—reputation of generals, ib.

Marshall, H., Military Miscellany, 387.
Maynooth, 247. See Ireland.
Meredith, Mrs., 'Notes and Sketches of New South Wales,' 98—character of the work, 105—extracts, 106.
Michelet, du Prêtre, de la Femme, de la Famille, 299—present state of the French clergy, 300—their influence in domestic life, 301—M. Michelet's opinions, 302—character as an historian, 303—celibacy of the Catholic clergy, 304—the 'family,' how threatened in France, 305—importance and advantage of the clergy being married, 306—nature of the religion to be taught throughout Christendom; theory of the Church of England, 307—the Romish confessional, 308—its present state in Europe, 310—original sin of the system, 311—influence of the direction, 313—the monastic system, 316—Mr. Albany Christie's tract on Holy Virginity, 318—effect of such writings, 319—extracts, 321—ultimate success of these doctrines, 322—principle upon which the ideal dignity of celibacy rests: its absence among the Jewish priesthood, 323—among the early Christians, 328—our Saviour's words in respect to it, 324—language of the disciples, 326—first great change in the spirit of Christianity, 329—difference of Scriptural and of monastic Christianity, 330—separation of the East and West upon this point, 331—celibacy a question of discipline only, 333—real source of deep religious sympathy, 335—married and unmarried missionaries, 326—advantages of an hereditary clergy, 337—influence of a married clergy, 338—celibacy does not guarantee the independence of the Church, 339-343—evidence in its early history, 340—advantages which might arise from voluntary clerical celibacy, 344—the 'maintenance' part of the question, 345—character of which the clergy must partake: test of their fitness for the people, 341—present power of the Roman Catholic Church, 348—excommunication, 350—mission that remains to the clergy, 351.
Mignet, M., 532. See Thiers.
Milnes, R. Monckton, 'The Real Union of England and Ireland,' 247.
Mitchell, Lieut.-Col., 'The Fall of Napoleon,' 204—refutation of Mr. Alison's errors, 244.

N.

Napoleon in the Belgian campaign of 1815, 225.
National, Paris newspaper, the, 538.
Norton, the Hon. Mrs., 'The Child of the Islands;' necessity for the poem, 2—its allegory, 3—'The Gipsy Girl of Windsor Forest,' 4—'The Magdalen,' 6—'The Peasant on Trial for his Life,' 7—'The Opera Artiste,' 8.

O.

O'Connell, mainspring of his present power, 296.
Ordnance surveying officers in Ireland, their antiquarian researches, 386.

P.

Palgrave, Sir Francis, 'Hand-book for Northern Italy,' 138.
Perceval, Dudley M., Maynooth and the Jew Bill, 247—contrast of his opinions and those of his father, 265.
Petrie, George, 'The Ecclesiastical Architecture of Ireland anterior to the Anglo-Norman Invasion,' 354—ancient literature and art of Ireland, 355, 376—state of the Church in the sixth and seventh centuries, 356—round towers, 358, 362—Mr. Petrie's subversion of previous theories, 359—their origin and use, 363—existing records of Irish antiquities, MSS., 365—monumental remains, 369—popular tradition, 370—churches of the fifth and sixth centuries, 372—oratories, 373—cemeteries, round houses, 374—hermit establishments, 375—ecclesiastical MSS. now in Ireland, 378—bells, crosiers, shrines, 383—cross of Cong, 384—practical suggestion derivable from a consideration of these subjects, 385—recent researches of the Ordnance surveying officers, 386.
Pitt, Wm., 451. See Stanhope.
Poetry, love of the Irish people for, 365.
Poole, Mrs., 'The Englishwoman in Egypt;' character of the work, 108—extracts, 110—her orthography, ib.
Priesthood, the, in France, 299. See Michelet,

Prussians, conduct of the, in the Belgian campaign of 1815, 224.

R.

Railways in Spain, their prospects, 162.
Registrar-General of Births, Deaths, and Marriages, first six annual Reports, 11.
Revolutions, the, of 1688 and of 1830—their analogy, 529.
Rickman, the late Mr., 11.
Robertson, Lord, 'Leaves from a Journal, and other Fragments in Verse:' cause of the appearance of the volume, 421—extracts, 426.
Romer, Mrs., the Rhone, the Darro, and the Guadalquivir, 98.
Round Towers of Ireland, 354. See Petrie.
Rousseau, Jean Jacques, 82. See Brougham.

S.

Sherbet, preparation of, in the hareem, 110.
Siborne, Captain W., 'History of the War in France and Belgium in 1814,' 204—character of the work, 216—mistake as to the Duke of Wellington's proceedings on the 17th of June, 1815, 218—explanation of the conduct of the Dutch and Hanoverian troops, 226—the attacks upon La Haye Sainte, 228—close of the battle of Waterloo, 229—Thielman's position at Wavre, 232.
Smith, Rev. Sydney, 'A Fragment on the Irish Roman Catholic Church,' 247—extracts, 282–284.
Spain, 137. See Ford.
Stanhope, Lady Hester, Memoirs of, as related by herself, in conversations with her Physician, 430—increase in the publications of private correspondence, &c. ib.—their policy and propriety considered, 431—publication of official and state documents, 438—Sir Samuel Romilly's manuscripts, as produced to the world by his sons, 439—correspondence of Mr. Wilberforce, 444—Lord Malmesbury's publication of his grandfather's official papers, 446—sources from which the memoirs of Lady Hester Stanhope are derived, 447—her character, 449—description of William Pitt, 451—Canning, 455—her routine of life, ib.—temper, 456—conversational powers, 457—causes of her embarrassments, 458.
Strauss, 'Life of Jesus,' 353.
Strzelecki, P. E. de, 'Physical Description of New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land,' 488—labours and qualifications of the author, 489–494—character and objects of modern English travellers, 491—foreign travellers, 492—education necessary for travel, 495—division of M. de Strzelecki's work, 497—distinctive character of Australia, 498—present colonization along the coasts, 499—Port Jackson in 1786 and 1843, 500—its moral and social condition, 501—marine and land surveys, ib.—terrestrial magnetism, 502—geology and mineralogy, 503—classification of the rocks of New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, 505—coal deposits, 507—fossil remains, 508—spurs, 509—climate, winds, 510—temperature, 513—zoology, 515—the aboriginal race, 516—agriculture, 517—sheep pastures, 519.

T.

Thiers, A., Histoire de la Révolution de France: Histoire du Consulat et de l'Empire, 521—real character and motive of these works, 522, 544, 583—origin of the first, 523—M. Thiers' pedigree and education, 524—his first essays, 526—arrival in Paris, ib.—connexion with the Constitutionnel, 528—proceedings of the Movement party previous to 1830, 531—M. Thiers' and M. Mignet's rival Histories of the Revolution, ib.—Thiers' preparation for the General History, 536—founds the National, 537—part taken by him with reference to the Ordinances of July, 1830, 539—becomes under-secretary of state: enters the Chamber of Deputies, 541—change of sentiments, 542—tactics of his Histories, 545—mode of working them: misrepresentations of the conduct of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette, 546—suppressions in respect to Egalité, Duc d'Orléans, 555—differences between his first and subsequent editions, 556—complexion put by him upon the events of the 5th and 6th October, 1789, 559—evidence of the Duke's participation in this movement, ib.—flattery of Lafayette, 562—Thiers' description of the émeute of 27th April, 1789, 564—its falsehood, 565—the massacres of September, 1792, 566—the insurrection of July 12 and 14: encounter between the people and the Prince de Lambesc's regiment, 568—capture of the Bastille, 572—procession after the capture, 576—examination and confession of Désot: concert and combination among the mob, 578—real portrait of the Revolution, 580.

Thiersch, Professor F., 'Ueber das Grabmal des Alyattes,' 38.
Thom, John Hamilton, 164. See White.
Travellers, English and foreign, 491. See Strzelecki.
Troops, reports on sickness, mortality, and invaliding of, 11—the Foot Guards, 31—the English soldier on foreign service, 32—pulmonary disease, 34—rheumatism; fevers, 35.

V.

Van Diemen's Land, 488. See Strzelecki.
Voltaire, 63. See Brougham.

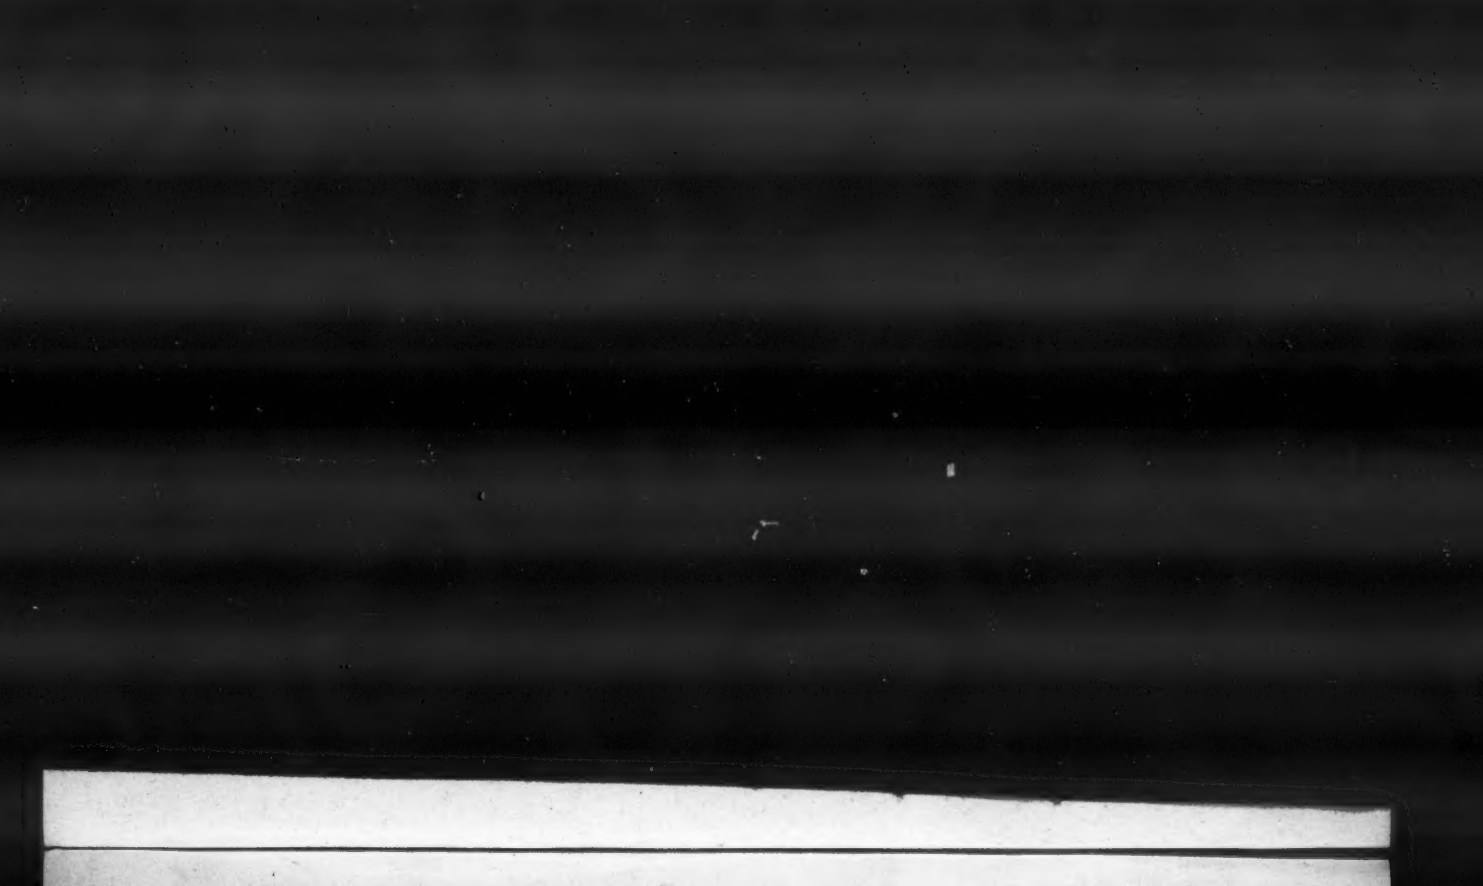
W.

Walpole, Horace, his hatred of Lord Chesterfield, 481.
Wellington, the Duke of, his proceedings on the 15th and 17th of June, 1815, 216, 218—manner in which information of these events was first obtained by the British Government, 221. See also Alison and Mitchell.
White, the Rev. Blanco, Life of, written by himself, edited by J. H. Thom, 164—cause of the interest centered in the work, ib.—Mr. White's birth: education at Seville, 165—Enters the priesthood, 166—arrival in England: his religious revolutions, 167—manner in which his character should be viewed, 168—his opinion as to the unbelief of the Spanish clergy, ib.—theory of fixed dogmatic faith, 170—claims as a teacher in divine philosophy, 172—phenomena of his writings, 174—redeeming points, 175—discharge of his active duties, 176—form of his two great delusions, 177—opinion of Bishop Butler, 178—errors of his theory, 179—the Christianity of churches does not require absolute conviction from its disciples, 182—effect of the law of credibility upon man, 183—requirements of Christianity in respect to belief, 184—consequences of the theory that the moral and dogmatical parts of the Gospel can be separated, 185—sin, 188—key to the comprehension of Mr. White's case, 190—restlessness of character, 191—difficulties of his position on entering the priesthood, 193—probable source of his morbid speculations, 194—effect of his bodily health, 195—ultimate form of his doctrine, 198—his most certain truths, 199—miracles, 200—element of his consolation in latter days, 201—sentiments as to immortality, 202—value and importance of the work, 203.

END OF THE SEVENTY-SIXTH VOLUME.


London: Printed by William Clowes and Sons, Stamford Street.